The Case Against Grades (##)
Initially Robbins announced that any project or test could be improved and resubmitted for a higher grade. But he never gave them "a number or grade on anything they do. The things that grades make kids do are things like fighting with parents, cheating, memorizing facts just for a test and then forgetting them. "This is not why I became a teacher." He said. They thought they had to study hard or be loved by others. They often came at a huge cost, though, he noticed: Kids were stressed out and also preferred to avoid intellectual risks. "They'll take an easier assignment that will guarantee the A."

Robbins decided to stop keeping track of grades. He thought it might improve. But he never gives them "a number or grade on anything they do.
